Assessment of potential for further research and archaeological investigation

Moderate: There is moderate to high potential for further documentary research on the history of orchards and the orchard industry in Orcop parish. The extensive records of the Mynde Estate of Much Dewchurch, which encompassed most of Orcop parish, contain a moderately sizeable number of references to orchards and cider mills. Wills and probate inventories of Orcop parishioners (held at the HRO) also contain references to cider and associated vessels & equipment (see Coleman (1992) ) A reasonably large number of references to orchards and cider mills was also found in local newspapers dating back to the late 18th century.

The potential for archaeological investigation of specific orchard sites within the parish has been assessed as Low; this assessment is based on the fact that very few archaeological sites associated with orchards have been identified. Two sites tentatively identified as being of possible potential are represented by an orchard site located immediately N of a motte and bailey castle at Orcop and another orchard site located in close proximity to a rabbit warren of medieval or post-medieval date
