Woolhope Church

The church, built of stone and originally opened in 1337, has been extensively altered and enlarged. The south wall of the church, which contains the main door, is a reconstruction of c1880. Their are 14th century, but the rest of the church is 19th century, with a large amount of stained glass. The churchyard has the original churchyard, with the north wall of the churchyard.

St John the Baptist Church

The church, built of stone and opened in 1845, has been extensively altered and enlarged. The north wall of the churchyard, which contains the main door, is a reconstruction of c1880. Their are 14th century, but the rest of the church is 19th century, with a large amount of stained glass. The churchyard has the original churchyard, with the north wall of the churchyard.

St Mary Magdalene Church

The church, first built as a chapel of ease in the 19th century, has been extensively altered and enlarged. The north wall of the churchyard, which contains the main door, is a reconstruction of c1880. Their are 14th century, but the rest of the church is 19th century, with a large amount of stained glass. The churchyard has the original churchyard, with the north wall of the churchyard.

St John the Evangelist Church

The church, first built as a chapel of ease in the 19th century, has been extensively altered and enlarged. The north wall of the churchyard, which contains the main door, is a reconstruction of c1880. Their are 14th century, but the rest of the church is 19th century, with a large amount of stained glass. The churchyard has the original churchyard, with the north wall of the churchyard.
Take time to explore the wealth of historic and rural heritage and landscape of these churchyards of our Victorian Age.
You will find Victorian and medieval church buildings set within churchyards where the abundance of plant and animal life, the carved stonework and the story of people who lived around the Malvern Hills can be discovered. These are some of the finest that can be found in Britain. There are record over 300 acres or more. The earliest being 17th or 18th century stones of local material and craftsmanship. These may have ancient churchyard crosses, old sundials and lychgates. Visit in spring and summer to see bulbs and meadow flowers. Ancient yew trees, possibly the oldest living things in Britain, add to the fascination and atmosphere of these places. Look for the stonework, mosses and delicate ferns, wildflowers and crossover the whole area of the Malvern Hills AONB for local tourism information points.

Leaflets describing four cycling routes and a variety of local walks are available from the Malvern Hills AONB website and local tourist information points.

You can help to protect the peace and tranquility of the AONB by using local buses. The AONB website www.malvernhillsaonb.org.uk has information on public transport services, or contact www.travelinemidlands.co.uk.

www.malvernhillsaonb.org.uk
You can download a 'map of Caring for Church Chyards'.
Caring for God’s Acre is a small, independent charity which helps communities to care for and interpret churchyards and burial grounds.

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for God’s Acre

Caring for God’s Acre is a small, independent charity which helps communities to care for and interpret churchyards and burial grounds.

Caring for God’s Acre is a small, independent charity which helps communities to care for and interpret churchyards and burial grounds.

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards

Caring for Churchyards
Great Malvern

Cotswold St James the Great

St James

Little Malvern

St James the Great

Location of featured churches around the Malvern Hills AONB

Cotswold St James the Great

St James

Little Malvern

St James the Great

Location of featured churches around the Malvern Hills AONB

Cotswold St James the Great

St James

Little Malvern

St James the Great

Location of featured churches around the Malvern Hills AONB

Cotswold St James the Great

St James

Little Malvern

St James the Great